DECISION

Statement of the Case

D. BARRY MORRIS, Administrative Law Judge: This case was heard before me in New York City during 11 days of hearing commencing February 27, 2002 and concluding March 3, 2003. Upon charges filed on September 20, November 27 and December 18, 2001,<sup>1</sup> a consolidated complaint was issued on December 20, alleging that Atlantic Veal & Lamb, Inc. ("Respondent") violated Section 8(a)(1) and (3) of the National Labor Relations Act, as amended (the "Act"). Respondent filed an answer denying the commission of the alleged unfair labor practices.

The parties were given full opportunity to participate, produce evidence, examine and cross-examine witnesses, argue orally and file briefs. Briefs were filed by the parties on May 21, 2003. Upon the entire record of the case, including my observation of the demeanor of the witnesses, I make the following:

Findings of Fact

I. Jurisdiction

Respondent, a New York corporation, with its principal office and place of business in Brooklyn, NY, has been engaged in the wholesale distribution and sale of meat. It has admitted, and I find, that it is an employer engaged in commerce within the meaning of Section 2(2), (6) and (7) of the Act. In addition, it has been admitted, and I find, that Knitgoods Workers' Union, Local 155, UNITE (the "Union") is a labor organization within the meaning of Section 2(5) of the Act.

II. The Alleged Unfair Labor Practices

A. The Facts

1. Background

Respondent is in the business of processing, selling and distributing meat at its facility in Brooklyn, NY. Philip Peerless is the President of the corporation, Martin Weiner is Secretary, and his son, Brian Weiner, is Vice-President. Joseph Saccardi is Chief Financial Officer. The production operations are supervised by three individuals, Eddie Cruz, Hector "Rafael" Lopez and Francisco "Jimmy" Rojas.

The company has approximately 100 production employees, whose categories are: "deboners", who remove the bone from the meat; "trimmers", who clean the meat and remove the fat; "cutters" or "choppers", who cut the calves in half; and slicing and packing employees. There are also several employees who do the inventory and fill the orders.

The Union organizing campaign started in August 2001 when Modesto "Cuidadano" Lora encountered "Marcelo" and "Wilson", two Union organizers on the street, about a block away from Respondent's facility. On August 24 some of the employees met at the Cafeto Restaurant located near the plant to discuss the Union and sign authorization cards. No supervisors were present.

The complaint alleges that Lora was discharged on August 22 and that Cecilio "Leo" Soto and George Ogando were discharged on August 28. The attack on the World Trade Center occurred on September 11 (9/11). On September 12 Respondent laid off three employees. From September 13 to 25 it laid off an additional 11 employees. Respondent contends that the layoffs were necessary in light of the 9/11 attack.

2. Alleged Discharge of Lora

Lora, a deboner, began his employment with Respondent in 1998. During August he and several co-workers met with Marcelo and Wilson, the Union organizers, on the street near the plant. Several days later Marcelo came to Lora's home and gave him an authorization card. Lora signed the card at his home on August 18. Marcelo gave Lora seven cards, which he distributed to fellow employees.

Lora testified that on Friday, August 17, he asked Lopez for permission to be absent the following Monday to attend a meeting at the Social Security office. Lora testified that Lopez responded, "no problem". When he returned to work on Tuesday, August 21, Lora testified that Lopez told him not to start working but instead he should wait for Rojas. He testified that Rojas told him to "take a week's vacation". Lora then went to discuss the matter with Peerless. Lora testified that Peerless told him, "the conversation is over, go home". Lora then asked for documentation to be able to collect unemployment insurance. Lora testified that Peerless told him, "go or call on the phone and they will give it to you automatically".

Peerless testified that Lora was suspended for taking Monday off without permission. Respondent's position is that Lora was not terminated but instead "he walked out because he refused to accept a suspension". Lopez testified that on Sunday, August 19, Lora asked him for permission to be absent the next day. Lopez testified that he did not authorize Lora's absence.

Franklyn Rosario, a deboner who was laid off on September 12, testified that at a meeting of employees, one of the employees asked Rojas why Lora and Soto were fired. Rosario testified that Rojas replied that they were the "two persons that were talking to the employees to join the Union". Juan Moreno, a cutter and stripper, who was laid off on September 12, testified that at a meeting of several employees which he attended, Rojas told them "not to let our minds get poisoned by Ciudadano [Lora] and Leo [Soto] because they were already fired".

3. Alleged Discharge of Soto

Soto, a deboner, began his employment with Respondent in 1998. He testified that he first heard about the Union on August 24 at which time he signed an authorization card. He further testified that the following Monday, August 27, Lopez told him that "he was trying to get the Union inside the company" and that he should be "very careful with was I doing". Lopez told him that the Union "was not going to bring benefits into the company". Soto testified that at the same time both Lopez and Rojas told him they were going to "keep an eye on me" and that he was "Modesto's [Lora] right hand man over there".

Soto reported for work at 5:30 A.M. on Tuesday, August 28. He testified that after he punched in, Lopez and Rojas told him that Peerless "didn't want to see me in the company any more". Soto testified that nevertheless he went to the table and began deboning. Soon thereafter Marty Weiner appeared at the table. Soto testified that Marty told him to leave, he replied that he wouldn't, and Marty said that if he didn't leave he would call the police. Soto then left the plant.

Peerless testified that Soto was called off of the production line by Human Resources with respect to some documentation. Peerless stated that Soto was suspended because he refused to leave the production line. Rojas testified that Peerless told him that Soto needed to produce some "paperwork" and that if he doesn't comply "don't let him start to work in the morning". On August 28 Rojas told Soto that he couldn't start work unless he provided the information. Soto began work anyway. Rojas testified that he then contacted Marty. Marty approached the table and told Soto to leave. Rojas testified that Soto "got excited" and shook his knife "in Marty's face". Lopez testified that when Marty told Soto to leave Soto "got real mad" and "pulled his knife". Lopez and Rosario testified that Lopez left the plant before the police arrived.

Marty testified that when he arrived on Tuesday morning he saw that Soto was having an argument with Lopez. Marty told Soto to listen to Lopez, but instead Soto "started to walk toward me with his knife in his hand". Marty testified that he told Soto to put the knife down and "if you want to talk, I'll talk with you. I won't talk with a knife pointing". Marty stated that after telling Soto to put the knife down three times, and Soto refusing to do so, Marty called the police.

4. Alleged Discharge of Ogando

Ogando began his employment with Respondent in 1998. He filled orders and did inventory under the supervision of Eddie Cruz. Originally his hours were 7 A.M. until 3:30 P.M. Because he was going to school, Ogando asked Cruz to change his hours to 6 A.M. until 2:30 P.M. The change was made in the beginning of the summer of 2001. Francis Marti also worked in the same department. Ogando signed a Union authorization card on August 23.

On August 28 Cruz told Ogando that his work schedule was being changed to 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Ogando testified that he told Cruz that he would not be able to attend school with that schedule. Ogando testified that he asked Cruz "do you want to fire me?". Ogando testified that after Cruz answered "no", Cruz asked him what time he left the previous Friday and if "I went to the Cafeto Restaurant".

Ogando testified that he then went to discuss the matter with Peerless, explaining to Peerless that the new schedule "wasn't going to work with my school schedule". Ogando testified that Peerless stated that "he couldn't do anything to help me". Ogando further testified that he asked Peerless what time he should start the next day to which Peerless replied, "from 9:00 to 5:00 the way Eddie told you". Ogando testified that he then told Peerless, "fine, we'll see each other tomorrow". Ogando further testified that at 3:30 that afternoon Cruz called him and told him "it was time to part ways and that he was going to give me layoff" and that he should return his keys.

Peerless testified that Ogando quit his job after he was told that his hours had been changed. Cruz testified that "things were not working out", the inventory was not being done correctly and orders were not being filled correctly. He testified that he told Ogando that the hours would have to be changed and that Ogando stated that because of school "he didn't want to do the hours". Cruz testified that after he told Ogando that he had to revert to his prior schedule, "the next day he didn't show up".

5. Plant Closure

Rosario testified that on August 31 a meeting was held between several employees and Rojas and Lopez. Rosario testified that Rojas told the employees that "if the Union came in Phil [Peerless] would close the business and move to Indiana". Moreno corroborated this testimony. Ramon Diaz testified that at a meeting of all the employees held on August 31 Jimmy stated that "if we continue this idea about the union Philip was going to close the company as he had done on other previous occasions". Rojas testified that at a meeting with several employees he shared his feelings about the Union. He told them that he "wouldn't trust the union", that the Union promises many things and "then they don't to anything after they are there". He further testified that he felt this way because of his "previous experience" with the Union and he admitted that part of the "previous experience" was "when the company shut down and moved to Utica". He conceded that he discussed this with the employees.

6. Threats to Discharge

Rosario testified that a meeting of employees was held on September 5. There were approximately 30 employees present along with Lopez and Rojas. Rosario testified that Rojas told the employees that "[if] Phil found out whoever was signing the cards for the Union, they would get fired". Rosario testified that Rojas again stated that Peerless would move the company "to Indiana". Moreno testified that at a meeting of all employees, Rojas said that the meeting was called to discuss the "consequences that arise from signing the card" and that the consequences were "that we could lose our jobs".

7. Interrogation

Moreno testified that after he signed the authorization card, he had a conversation with Rojas and Lopez in the coatroom. Lopez asked him "what I knew about the Union". Moreno responded that he "didn't know anything about that". As stated earlier, Ogando testified that Cruz asked him what time he left the plant on the Friday that the employees held a meeting at the Cafeto Restaurant and then asked "if I went to the Cafeto Restaurant".

8. Surveillance

Lora testified that after he was terminated he was passing out Union authorization cards about a block away from the plant. He testified that Cruz was standing in the middle of the block “observing” him. He also testified that Marty Weiner “observed” him and that Rojas and Cruz were standing at one of the plant’s exits, “observing” him. Peerless testified that there are cameras at each of the plant’s entrances.

9. Layoffs

Rosario worked for Respondent from 1997 until 2000, at which time he was laid off. He was rehired in June 2001 and was laid off on September 12. He testified that he signed a Union authorization card at the Cafeto Restaurant meeting and that no supervisors were present. He testified that during the afternoon of September 12 Lopez and Rojas told him that they were going to give him “layoff for two weeks because there wasn’t enough work to do in the company”. Rosario testified that while he was employed by Respondent he had worked as a deboner, a cutter, a trimmer and a packer.

Moreno, a cutter and stripper, was hired by Respondent in December 1999 and was laid off on September 12. He signed a Union authorization card on August 24 at the Cafeto Restaurant and testified that no supervisors were present. He testified that at 2 P.M. on September 12 Lopez told him “stay home for two weeks because work is slow”.

Ramon Diaz, a warehouse worker, began his employment with Respondent in October 1998. He was laid off on September 12. He testified that during the afternoon of September 12 Rojas told him “go home because there was no work for me”. Rafael Mora, a trimmer, worked for Respondent from December 1998 until the end of 1999. He started working there again in August 2001 and was laid off on September 12. The complaint lists the names of ten additional employees who were laid off between September 13 and September 25. They did not testify. Notations on the employment records contained in the record as General Counsel Exhibit 11 indicate that the following employees may have held the indicated positions: Pena-packer; Polanco-trimmer; McKensie-packer; and Vasquez-packer. General Counsel Exhibit 25 indicates that McKensie was a “helper”. The record does not show what jobs the other laid-off employees held.

Attachments to General Counsel and Charging Party’s briefs show that there were 21 employees newly hired after September 12. The record does not show what positions these employees were hired to fill.

B. Discussion and Conclusions

1. Alleged Discharge of Lora

The complaint alleges that Respondent discharged Lora on September 22. Lora signed a Union authorization card on September 18 and distributed seven cards to other employees. I credit his testimony that on Friday, September 17, he asked his supervisor, Lopez, for permission to be absent on Monday. Lopez told Lora, “no problem”. When Lora returned to work on Tuesday, September 22, Rojas, another supervisor, told him to “take a week’s vacation”. Lora went to discuss the matter with Peerless, after which Peerless told him, “the conversation is over, go home”. Peerless testified that Lora was not terminated, but instead was suspended for one week.

Under Wright Line, 251 NLRB 1083, 1089 (1980), enfd. 662 F.2d 899 (1st Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 989, the Board requires that the General Counsel make a prima facie showing sufficient to support the inference that protected conduct was a motivating factor in the employer's decision. Once this is established, the burden shifts to the employer to demonstrate that the "same action would have taken place even in the absence of the protected conduct."

Lora signed the Union authorization card on September 18 and distributed seven additional cards. I credit Rosario's testimony that Rojas said that Lora and Soto were "the two persons that were talking to the employees to join the Union" and they "got fired because they were the head[s] ... to get the employees to get in the Union". In addition, I credit Moreno's testimony that Rojas told several employees "not to let our minds get poisoned" by Lora and Soto. Based on the above I find that General Counsel has made a prima facie showing that protected conduct was a motivating factor in Respondent's decision.

Respondent contends that Lora was suspended and was not terminated. In addition, Respondent contends that Lora was not given permission to be absent on Monday, September 20. While Lopez testified that he did not give Lora permission to be absent on Monday, I do not credit that testimony. Instead I have credited Lora's testimony that when he asked Lopez for permission to be absent, Lopez replied, "no problem". Accordingly, I find that Respondent has not sustained its burden of showing that the "same action would have taken place even in the absence of the protected conduct".

With respect to Respondent's contention that Lora was not terminated, Lora testified that on September 21 at a meeting with Rojas and Lopez, he was told, "they wanted to give me one week as punishment". He testified that Rojas told him "take a week's vacation". Peerless testified that Lora was suspended and Respondent's position is that he was not terminated. While Rosario testified that at a meeting on August 31 he was told that Lora was "fired" because he was one of the "head[s]" to get the employees in the Union, there is no indication that Lora was told prior to the end of the one-week suspension that he was "fired". Accordingly, I find that Lora was given a one-week suspension because of his Union activities, in violation of Section 8(a)(1) and (3) of the Act.

2. Alleged Discharge of Soto

Soto signed a Union authorization card on August 24. I credit his testimony that on Monday, August 27 Lopez told him that "he was trying to get the Union inside the company" and that he should be "very careful with what I was doing". I further credit his testimony that Lopez and Rojas told him that they were going to "keep an eye on me" and that he was Lora's "right hand man". As discussed previously, I have found that Rojas told Rosario that Lora and Soto were the "head[s]" to get the employees in the Union. I credit Soto's testimony that on Tuesday, August 28, after he punched in, Lopez and Rojas told him that Peerless "didn't want to see me in the company any more". Soto was discharged that day. Pursuant to Wright Line, supra, I find that General Counsel has made a prima facie showing that protected conduct was a motivating factor in Respondent's decision to discharge Soto.

Peerless told Rojas that Soto needed to produce some documentation and that if he doesn't produce it, Rojas should not let Soto begin work on Tuesday, August 28. On Tuesday morning, when Soto appeared for work, Rojas told him that he couldn't start work unless he provided the information. Soto started to work anyway. Rojas then contacted Marty Weiner. Marty approached the table where Soto was working and told him to leave. I credit Marty's testimony that Soto "got excited" and shook his knife in Marty's face. Marty told Soto to put the knife down but Soto didn't comply. After telling Soto to put the knife down three times, and Soto having refused, Marty called the police. Soto left the plant before the police arrived.

I find that Respondent has satisfied its burden under Wright Line, supra, of showing that Soto would have been discharged even in the absence of his Union activity. As Marty Weiner testified, the knife was 13 inches long, it was “threatening” and “dangerous” and wielding such a knife is a dischargeable offense. Accordingly, the allegation is dismissed.

3. Alleged Discharge of Ogando

Ogando signed a Union authorization card at home on August 23. He did not attend the Union meeting at the Cafeto Restaurant. No showing has been made in the record that Respondent knew that he signed the card or that he engaged in any activity on behalf of the Union. General Counsel’s brief states that Respondent engaged in “nip in the bud” tactics. Apparently it is General Counsel’s theory that Respondent discharged or laid off employees even though their Union activities, if any, were not known to Respondent to “nip in the bud” the impending unionization. In this connection, the Board’s decision in Link Mfg. Co., 281 NLRB 294 (1986) is instructive. The Board stated (id. at 299, n. 8):

Although several of the laid-off employees had signed cards and engaged in union activities, it is unnecessary to the finding of discrimination that the Respondent specifically knew of the union activities of each of the discriminatees. ...The Respondent’s reaction was thus in the nature of a “power display” in response to the advent of the Union and was unlawful without regard to specific knowledge of the prounion activities of particular employees.

Until the summer of 2001 Ogando’s hours were 7 A.M. until 3:30 P.M. Because he was attending school Ogando asked his supervisor, Cruz, if his hours could be changed to start at 6 A.M. and finish at 2:30 P.M. Cruz agreed to the change. On August 28 Cruz told Ogando that his schedule was being changed to 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Ogando told Cruz that he would not be able to continue going to school with the new schedule. Cruz then asked Ogando whether he attended the Union meeting at the Cafeto Restaurant the previous Friday. Ogando replied that he had not attended.

Ogando subsequently discussed the matter with Peerless. Peerless told Cruz that he would have to comply with the new schedule and to report the next day at 9 A.M. I credit Ogando’s testimony that he told Peerless “fine, we’ll see each other tomorrow”. Later that afternoon Cruz telephoned Ogando and told him “it was time to part ways”. In light of Link Mfg. Co., supra, I find that General Counsel has made a prima facie showing that protected conduct was a motivating factor in Respondent’s decision to discharge Ogando.

Cruz testified that he changed Ogando’s hours because the inventory was not being done correctly and the orders were not being filled correctly. While Cruz testified that he changed Ogando’s hours back to what they were, I credit Ogando’s testimony that his hours had been 7 A.M. until 3:30 P.M. Indeed, I credit Ogando’s testimony that the employees in his department did not work from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. and that after Ogando’s discharge, Marti’s hours were changed back to 6 A.M. to 2:30 P.M. I find that Respondent has not sustained its burden of showing that Ogando would have been discharged were it not for the Union campaign. Accordingly, I find that Respondent discharged Ogando in violation of Section 8(a)(1) and (3) of the Act.

4. September Layoffs

Fourteen employees were laid off between September 12 and September 25. No showing has been made that Respondent was aware whether any of these employees had signed Union authorization cards or whether they had done anything in support of the Union. Instead, General Counsel's theory is that Respondent intended to "nip in the bud" the organizing campaign. As previously discussed, in view of Link Mfg. Co., supra, I find that General Counsel has made a prima facie showing that protected conduct was a motivating factor in Respondent's decision to lay off the employees.

Respondent contends that the layoffs were necessary because of the 9/11 attack on the World Trade Center. Saccardi testified that after the first reports of the attack he and Peerless discussed that they were going to be "seriously affected by a catastrophe of this scope". Peerless testified, "[A] lot of our businesses, restaurant related, airline related, cruise ships related, hotel related, when the World Trade Center went down I think it was fairly well documented that the restaurants, the airlines, the cruise ships, all of those industries suffered tremendously and they cut back on their buying".

The record shows that in August 2001, 6020 calves were purchased. This decreased to 5595 calves purchased in September, a loss of 7%. In October, 5190 calves were purchased. This represented a decrease of 14% from the August purchases. The record further shows that for the month of September 2000, 6364 nature calves<sup>2</sup> were killed. In September 2001 the corresponding figure was 4755 calves, a decrease of 25%. For the month of October 2000, 6883 nature calves were killed. The corresponding figure for October 2001 was 5613 calves, a decrease of 18%.

In view of the above, I believe that Respondent has satisfied its Wright Line burden of showing that the "same action would have taken place even in the absence of the protected conduct". Accordingly, the allegation is dismissed.

5. Failure to Recall

The complaint alleges that, with the exception of Jose Hernandez, Respondent has failed to recall the laid-off employees. Only four of the laid-off employees testified. During the time that Rosario worked at the plant, he worked as a deboner, a cutter, a trimmer and a packer. Moreno was a cutter and stripper. Diaz was a warehouse worker and Mora was a trimmer. After September 12, there were 21 newly hired employees. The record does not show what positions these employees held.

In order to show that an employer has failed to recall a laid-off employee it must be demonstrated that a job was filled which should otherwise have been offered to the laid-off employee. Inasmuch as Rosario had been a deboner, cutter, trimmer and packer, he had basically performed all of the jobs that were being performed in the plant. Thus, even though the record does not show what jobs the 21 new employees were hired for, clearly at least one of the positions was for a deboner, cutter, trimmer or packer. I find, therefore, that Respondent has violated the Act by not recalling Rosario. As to the other laid-off employees, no showing has been made that jobs became available which were the same jobs which they previously performed. Accordingly, with respect to the laid-off employees other than Rosario, the allegation is dismissed.

<sup>2</sup> BOB calves are newborn calves. Nature calves are approximately 24 weeks old before they are slaughtered. The bulk of Respondent's purchases are nature calves.

6. Plant Closure

The complaint alleges that Respondent violated the Act by threatening employees with plant closure if they selected the Union as their collective-bargaining representative. I credit Rosario's testimony that on August 31 Rojas told employees that if the Union "came in" Peerless would "close the business and move to Indiana". This was corroborated by Moreno. I also credit the testimony of Diaz that Rojas told employees that "if we continue this idea about the Union", Peerless "was going to close the company as he had done on other previous occasions". Accordingly, I find that Respondent has violated the Act by threatening plant closure if the employees select the Union as their collective-bargaining representative. See Quality Aluminum Products, 278 NLRB 338 (1986), enfd. 813 F. 2d 795 (6th Cir. 1987).

7. Threats to Discharge

I credit Rosario's testimony that on September 5 Rojas told employees that if Peerless found out who was "signing the cards for the Union, they would get fired". I also credit Moreno's testimony that at a meeting of employees Rojas said that a consequence of signing the Union authorization cards would be that "we could lose our jobs". I find that through such statements Respondent threatened loss of jobs for supporting the Union, in violation of Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

8. Interrogation

The complaint alleges that Respondent interrogated its employees about their Union activities. I credit Moreno's testimony that Lopez asked him "what I knew about the Union". I also credit Ogando's testimony that Cruz asked him if he had attended the Union meeting at the Cafeto Restaurant. I find that these questions constitute unlawful interrogation, in violation of Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

9. Surveillance

The complaint alleges that Respondent created the impression of, and engaged in surveillance, in violation of the Act. Lora testified that after he was terminated he was passing out Union authorization cards about a block away from the plant. He testified that Cruz was standing in the middle of the block "observing" him. Lora did not testify what the "observing" consisted of. He simply testified to the conclusory statement that Cruz was "observing" him. Lora also testified that Marty Weiner "observed" him and that Rojas and Cruz were standing at one of the plants exits, "observing" him. Again, no details were given as to what the "observing" consisted of. I do not credit this testimony, and find that General Counsel has not sustained her burden of proof. In addition, General Counsel elicited testimony from Peerless that there was a security camera at each of the plant's exits. If this testimony was intended to show unlawful surveillance, it shows no such thing. There is no indication that the cameras served any purpose other than for security. Accordingly, I find that General Counsel has not shown by a preponderance of the evidence that Respondent engaged in unlawful surveillance or created the impression of surveillance. The allegation is therefore dismissed.

10. Other Allegations

General Counsel has moved to withdraw the allegation that Respondent ceased giving Soto a free ride to work and that James Fischer was one of the unlawfully laid-off employees. The motion is granted and the allegations are withdrawn.

At the hearing General Counsel amended the complaint to allege that Rojas and Lopez unlawfully solicited grievances. Rosario testified that at a meeting of approximately 60 employees he and two other employees asked Rojas why they had not gotten raises. Rojas explained to them why they had not gotten raises. I find that General Counsel has not shown that Respondent solicited grievances or that there was a promise or an implied promise to confer benefits. The testimony merely shows that several employees, on their own, asked why they had not received raises. Not only did Rojas not promise them raises, but he told Rosario that "I should be lucky they took me back to work". I find that General Counsel has not shown that Respondent solicited grievances in violation of the Act. Accordingly, the allegation is dismissed. See Bakersfield Memorial Hospital, 315 NLRB 596, 600 (1994).

The complaint alleges that Respondent unlawfully refused to pay Ogando for work performed the last day of his employment, September 28. Ogando punched in on September 28 and worked the full day. However, he did not punch out. Respondent contends that he wasn't paid for that day because he didn't punch out. I do not believe that Respondent has sustained its burden under Wright Line, supra, of showing that under similar circumstances an employee who has worked the day but did not punch out isn't paid. Accordingly, I find that Respondent violated the Act by refusing to pay Ogando for the hours he worked on September 28. Inasmuch as I am ordering backpay for Ogando, the backpay period shall include September 28.

Conclusions of Law

1. Respondent is an employer engaged in commerce within the meaning of Section 2(2), (6) and (7) of the Act.

2. The Union is a labor organization within the meaning of Section 2(5) of the Act.

3. By threatening plant closure, by threatening to discharge employees because of their Union activities and by interrogating employees concerning their Union activities, Respondent has violated Section 8(a)(1) of the Act.

4. By suspending and discharging employees for protected activity, Respondent has violated Section 8(a)(1) and (3) of the Act.

5. By failing to recall a laid-off employee because of protected activity, Respondent has violated Section 8(a)(1) and (3) of the Act.

6. The aforesaid unfair labor practices constitute unfair labor practices affecting commerce within the meaning of Section 2(6) and (7) of the Act.

7. Respondent did not violate the Act in any other manner alleged in the complaint.

The Remedy

Having found that the Respondent has engaged in certain unfair labor practices, I find that it must be ordered to cease and desist therefrom and to take certain affirmative action designed to effectuate the policies of the Act.

Respondent, having unlawfully discharged Jeorge Ogando, I shall order Respondent to offer him immediate and full reinstatement to his former position, or if such position no longer exists, to a substantially equivalent position, without prejudice to his seniority or other rights and privileges. In addition, Respondent having unlawfully suspended Modesto Lora and having unlawfully failed to recall Franklyn Rosario, I shall order Respondent to make whole Lora for the one-week suspension and make whole Ogando and Rosario for any loss of earnings they may have suffered. Ogando's backpay period shall commence September 28 and extend until Respondent's offer of reinstatement. Rosario's backpay period shall commence on the date a position as deboner, cutter, trimmer or packer became available, and extend until the date he is recalled by Respondent. Backpay shall be computed in accordance with F. W. Woolworth Co., 90 NLRB 289 (1950), with interest as computed in New Horizons for the Retarded, 283 NLRB 1173 (1987).

On these findings of fact and conclusions of law and on the entire record, I issue the following recommended:<sup>3</sup>

ORDER

The Respondent, Atlantic Veal & Lamb, Inc., its officers, agents, successors, and assigns, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Threatening plant closure, threatening to discharge employees because of their Union activities and interrogating employees concerning their Union activities.

(b) Suspending and discharging employees because they engaged in protected activities.
